THE PUBLISHING READER is a selection of bookworks, theory and critical thinking about and around the subject of artist's publishing. Building on the diversity of the PUBLICS research library, the selection traces the subtle shifts in focus away from the publication and towards the practice of publishing – from the object to the context.

TUUKKA KAILA is an artist, educator and co-founder of Rooftop Press, a Helsinki based publishing initiative exploring publishing as a mode of artistic existence and a practical means of cultivating collaborative work. As part of its publishing activities, Rooftop Press organises a nomadic artists' publishing event Bookies and maintains an open access micro-press Vallilan Risopaja with the intention of placing the production process in the hands of the artists to facilitate a more experimental approach to bookmaking and publishing. Tuukka regularly teaches publishing practices at The Academy of Fine Arts and at Aalto University School of Arts, Design and Architecture.
